1. Final training results

   The model is working eprfectly. We did not do any other changes from deliverable2.

2. Model integration to a web application

   We used a python framework called bottle to integrate our model that resides in world_cup_predictor.py with the landing page, which is the template index.html inside of the views folder. The two files are linked by a controller, that is WebApp.py.
   The controller handels the routing and pre processing of the information before sending it back to the template to display the results
